Enrichment is key to understanding the law of unjust enrichment and restitution. This book provides a comprehensive analysis of the concept of enrichment and its implications for restitutionary awards. Dr Lodder argues that enrichment may be characterised either factually or legally, and explores the consequences of that distinction.

Unjust enrichment applies in situations where one party is enriched at the expense of another. The elements required to bring a claim for unjust enrichment are that: • the defendant has been enriched (first requirement) • the enrichment was at the claimant's expense (second requirement) • the retention of the enrichment is unjust (third requirement)

Goff & Jones is the leading work on the law of unjust enrichment. The first edition appeared fifty years ago, in 1966, and successive editions have played a major role in establishing the central importance of the subject for private and commercial law. The text is comprehensive in coverage and written by highly respected scholars who analyse and explain the principles governing claims in unjust enrichment, demonstrating how these principles have been applied through detailed discussion of ...

Goff & Jones: The Law of Unjust Enrichment / Litigation

In laws of equity, unjust enrichment occurs when one person is enriched at the expense of another in circumstances that the law sees as unjust. Where an individual is unjustly enriched, the law imposes an obligation upon the recipient to make restitution, subject to defences such as change of position. Liability for an unjust (or unjustified) enrichment arises irrespective of wrongdoing on the part of the recipient.

The law of unjust enrichment (also called the law of restitution) was officially recognised by the highest court in the United Kingdom in 1991. Professors Birks and Burrows' research has been influential in the identification and clarification of the principles of this new branch of law. Their theoretical work in this area has been frequently cited in English courts and has shaped many decisions made in this area.
